

ECON3310 : Principles of Free Enterprise

A study of economies based on voluntary exchange or free markets. Students will examine the relationship between liberty and economic activity, and the theories of how freedom of choice raises the standard of living in a society. The course includes a comparative study of alternative systems of economic organization.

Credits 3

Prerequisite Courses

ECON2010

Prerequisites

Prerequisite course or Instructor's approval