

EDUC2110 : Educational Psychology

A study of the psychological implications involved in the teaching-learning situation with emphasis on those psychological principles applicable to children ages 6-12 and adolescents 13-18. A variety of learning and developmental theories based on research from the field of psychology are covered. May be taken in the same semester as EDUC1100. (See PSYC2110.)

Credits 3

Prerequisites

EDUC1100, or instructor's approval.